Ordinary shares may be issued up to a number corresponding to one hundred (100) per cent of the entire share capital. Class C shares may be issued up to a number corresponding to thirty (30) per cent of the entire share capital.

If the company resolves to issue new ordinary shares and class C shares by way of a cash issue or a set-off issue, holders of ordinary shares and class C shares shall have a pre-emptive right to subscribe for new shares of the same class of shares in proportion to the number of shares previously held by them (primary pre-emptive right). In the event of an increase of the share capital by way of a bonus issue with the issue of new shares, new shares shall be issued of each class of shares in proportion to the number of shares of the same class already in existence. Existing shares of a particular class shall thereby carry a right to new shares of the same class. Class C shares do not carry a right to participate in a bonus issue. The foregoing shall not entail any restriction on the possibility of issuing shares of a new class by way of a bonus issue, following the necessary amendment of the articles of association.

Upon the dissolution of the company, class C shares shall carry an equal right to the company's assets as other shares, however not in an amount exceeding the quotient value of the share.
